Sombra Shades Launches Industry-First Native PoE Drapery Motor

https://www.wf-vision.com/motorization/sombra-shades-launches-industry-first-native-poe-dr

Sombra Shades, the leader in luxury-grade motorized shade solutions, today announced the launch of its Native Power over Ethernet (PoE) Drapery Motor, a first-of-its-kind solution designed to bring direct PoE operation to motorized drapery. The new motor expands Sombra Shades' broader offering of PoE roller shade motors and shade applications, giving dealers, fabricators, and integration professionals a path to deliver unified, luxury-grade window-covering systems.

This motor was developed to address a gap in the motorized drapery market. Traditionally, installers had to choose between battery-operated systems and hardwired systems that require separate wires for power and data and add installation complexity. The Sombra Native PoE Drapery Motor uses Power over Ethernet to combine power and network connectivity through a single low-voltage cable, supporting a cleaner installation while eliminating batteries.

Sombra’s design features a local RF remote control allowing the motor to be operated and programmed directly through its RF remote. This provides responsive everyday control and a practical local-control option independent of a network connection. Additionally, integrators can use its local IP control interface and JSON-based API to integrate the motor with leading third-party control systems, including Control4 and Crestron Home. In partnership with integration companies, Sombra Shades plans to expand to operators.

Key features include:

- Simplified installation: One Ethernet cable delivers both power and connectivity, helping reduce wiring clutter.

- Battery-free operation: Direct PoE eliminates battery charging cycles, battery replacement and related service demands.

- Local-control reliability: Direct RF remote control and programming provide a responsive local-control option independent of a network connection.

- Integration flexibility: A local JSON API supports integration with leading third-party automation platforms.

- Cleaner long-term ownership: The absence of an onboard power buffer removes a component category that can age, lose capacity and eventually require service.

- A complete PoE full offering: The drapery motor complements Sombra Shades' roller shade motors and broader motorized shade portfolio.

"Drapery was the missing piece of a complete PoE offering," said Rick Rizner, CTO and Managing Partner at Sombra Shades. "With this motor, we're giving dealers and integrators a refined solution that brings dual-protocol control together in one product: simple local RF control and programming, along with straightforward integration into the leading control systems their clients already love. It gives them the flexibility of advanced automation without requiring complex software to configure or enjoy it."

Unlike motor designs that use onboard power reserves, Sombra's Native PoE Drapery Motor is designed to operate directly from PoE infrastructure without an onboard battery or power buffer. This approach removes a potential long-term maintenance and replacement consideration while providing predictable power from the installed Ethernet network whenever the system is energized.

For dealers and installers, the direct-PoE architecture can simplify troubleshooting by focusing diagnostics on familiar infrastructure components, including the Ethernet run, PoE switch or injector, network connection and motor.

"Dealers want to offer a PoE shading solution without creating extra steps between the shade installer and the integration team," said Chris Taylor, Executive Sales Officer and General Manager at Sombra Shades. "This motor gives dealers a direct path from installation and setup to control-system integration. The result is a more seamless project experience and a polished, fully integrated luxury solution clients can see and enjoy every day.

Behr Gets Grounded With Its 2027 Color of the Year

https://www.wf-vision.com/design-and-trends/behr-gets-grounded-with-its-2027-color-of-the-

Behr has named Grounded (T27-01), an earthy olive green inspired by nature, its 2027 Color of the Year.

Blending moss and olive tones with subtle brown undertones, Grounded taps into the continued desire for interiors that feel warm, restorative and connected to the natural world. The versatile shade is designed to bring a sense of calm to a space while still offering enough depth to make an impact.

“Grounded is a reminder that the most meaningful spaces are the ones that help us connect with the rhythms of everyday life,” said Kayla Kratz, head of color at Behr Paint Company. “The shade’s organic warmth creates a sense of calm and renewal, making every room feel inviting and effortlessly livable.”

Grounded anchors Behr’s 2027 Color Trends Palette, a collection inspired by the beauty and balance of the natural world. The palette spans warm neutrals, earthy tones, muted pinks, clay hues and airy blues, offering plenty of opportunities for layering color throughout the home.

The collection also brings seven Behr legacy colors back into the mix: Coastal Beige, Wheat Grass, Environmental, Denim Light, Smokey Claret, Sarsaparilla and Mozart. Each was selected to complement Grounded and help create cohesive, nature-inspired palettes.

The selection comes as homeowners increasingly look to their interiors as a place to retreat and recharge. According to research conducted by Behr, 86% of Americans say home DIY and design projects help them feel grounded by allowing them to create a safe, comforting haven, while 84% say the right paint color is critical to making a space feel like home.

This year’s announcement also marks the 10th anniversary of Behr’s Color of the Year program, which has evolved over the past decade alongside changing attitudes toward color, design and the role the home plays in everyday life.

To commemorate the milestone, Behr is donating $250,000 to Habitat for Humanity to support affordable homeownership programs and help families create comfortable, stable homes.

Grounded and the complete Behr 2027 Color Trends Palette are available in Behr Dynasty, Behr Marquee, Behr Ultra and Behr Premium Plus paints through The Home Depot.

Award-winning custom window coverings designer and industry educator Deb Barrett today announced that enrollment is now open for the Fall session of her Window Treatment Certification Course, beginning October 7, 2026. As an added incentive, every student who registers will receive a free

1-hour virtual Strategy Session, a one-on-one consultation designed to help them put the skills learned in the course directly to work in their own design business.

The highly popular Window Treatment Certification Course is a comprehensive, 12-week program built for interior designers, decorators, and design professionals who want to master the art and science of custom window coverings. Delivered through weekly live webinar sessions plus hands-on exercises and mentoring, the course covers the full scope of window treatment design and specification — from measuring, drapery hardware, and fabric and lining selection, to fullness calculations, pattern placement, couture fabrication techniques, and client presentation. Graduates earn the distinction of Certified Window Treatment Specialist (CWTS), a credential they can use to market themselves as verified experts in a notoriously complex and underserved design category.

“Window treatments are one of the most complex — and most commonly mishandled — parts of a design project,” said Barrett. “I built this course to hand designers the tools, vocabulary, and confidence to get it right every time. Adding a free Strategy Session for this Fall’s students takes it a step further — it’s dedicated, one-on-one time to map out exactly how they’ll apply what they’ve learned to their own business, right away.”

What Graduates Are Saying

“This was one of the most comprehensive and thorough courses I’ve ever taken. I’m going to recommend this course to someone I know that’s interested in expanding their window covering offerings.”

“This course was so much more than I ever expected… I’ve told all my colleagues how valuable it has been and I highly recommend they invest in this opportunity.”

“The course is the best on the market, and I strongly recommend all designers and window treatment professionals take it. It helped me get the confidence and knowledge I need to be successful in my business.”

Designers, decorators, and design industry professionals interested in registering for the Fall session can find full details at debbarrett.com/w-t-certification.
